MOTTO

We can say what we mean without being mean.

ABOUT

Rosalinda Randall is a Speaker, Author, Media Source, based in Northern California.

Her presentations cover standard etiquette practices, addressing and modifying these practices to specific industries. She also incorporates the importance of communication skills, professional presence, and picking up on social cues. There isn't a one-size-fits-all formula. That is why she offers different perspectives encouraging individuals to consider options on how to communicate more effectively, respectfully, and with a lot less drama.

She has been speaking and writing about etiquette for over twenty years. She frequently appears on television as an expert source, and is often quoted in a variety of publications, both domestic and international.

AUDIENCES

Rosalinda has presented her programs to adults, teens, and children. Industries include community organizations, large and small companies, school staff, colleges/universities, juvenile detention centers, and formerly incarcerated women. Her interactive style, welcoming nature, and enthusiasm allows her to connect with all types of audiences.

BOOKS

Her book, "Don't Burp in the Boardroom; Handling Uncommonly Common Workplace Dilemmas" complements her signature straight-forward approach and sense of humor. She also self-published two other books.

OTHER INTERESTS

Rosalinda recently started an acting career. She enjoys dancing with her husband, Pilates reformer, Improv classes, writing, and visiting her family. She is bilingual (Spanish), and a California native.
